

CONTINUING MEDICAL EDUCATION

COURSE GOAL

The goal of this symposium is to enhance each providers' way of practicing medicine by helping them develop a framework for approaching patients compassionately and ethically while working within a realm of medicine that is increasingly affected by outside influences such as industry, healthcare systems, healthcare reform and shrinking medical resources.

Participants will have the opportunity to attend didactic lectures and participate in open discussions on ethical decision making.

NEEDS STATEMENT

The absence of standard Medical Ethics training requirements in medical school coupled with few opportunities for experienced staff to gain further education that addresses the ethical problems they face has left many in the medical community without a solid foundation on which to build when faced with an ethical decision.

This conference will cover a broad range of ethical issues that clinicians face every day

- impact of healthcare initiatives on ethical decision making
- rationed care
- maintaining an ethical balance between industry and surgeons
- recognizing internal biases
- doing more with less innovation in surgery – what's right for the patient

Through didactics and discussion, attendees will identify resources that will help them develop a framework that will assist them in identifying and overcoming their barriers to ethical decision making.

TARGET AUDIENCE

Surgical specialties, regionally involving the West and Northwest regions of the United States.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this course, the participant will provide better patient care through an increased ability to:

- Discuss the elements of medical decision making

- Identify resources available for resolving medical ethical dilemmas
- Recognize the impact of the changing medical environment on making ethical decisions
- Describe the dilemmas presented by shrinking medical resources, industry-clinical partnerships, provision of care in underserved regions
- Recognize the presence of individual bias in ethical medical decision making
